The problems facing the educational system include but are not limited to:

Information Asymmetry

- The teaching service process is not transparent.
- It's difficult to obtain a real evaluation.
- The pricing of service content is vague.
- It's hard to control the learning process.

Hard to Match and Link Resources

- Regional teaching resources are not balanced.
- Transnational resources cannot be linked.
- It's hard to choose the teaching tools
- Lack of quality teaching system

High Cost of Trade Friction

- High cost of customer acquisition
- High management cost in teachers
- Serious and widespread content piracy
- Less investment in the research and development of teaching system

HOW UNL PROPOSES TO SOLVE THE AFOREMENTIONED PROBLEM

UNILYSIS has the idea of Using AI technology to structure and digitize the whole process of teaching services and content enjoyed by consumers, quantitatively assess the quality of service, and combine with the evaluation of consumers to form a complete evaluation model.

Using blockchain technology to record and save all the reviews, the evaluation will be constantly updated and accumulated with multiple services, and these assessments can not be arbitrarily tampered with, but fully demonstrated on the platform. Any good service and content can be spread more effectively. The evaluation mechanism will also enhance the enthusiasm of the provider to improve its quality of service.

- According to the needs and characteristics of all sides, we will carry out the matching of global educational resources. According to the information and evaluation from service and content providers, at the same time, coupled with the customers' demands, we will conduct intelligent matching and recommendation globally. According to the matching between providers and customers, the best quality learning tool is recommended to improve the teaching effect. Recommending different contents and services for different consumers of the world and providing appropriate disseminators for different providers, all these mechanisms will make the platform work more efficiently.
  - The system will make comprehensive and scientific pricing of services and contents, and all kinds of learning support tools based on past evaluation data, and consumers will pay EDU by this price. Make high-quality content and service providers enjoy higher returns, which can enhance providers' enthusiasm, and gradually form the utility of good money to expel bad money. Actually, make the balance between supply and demand for services and consumption. Combining the matching mechanism, the resources will not be too concentrated to effectively improve the operation efficiency of the whole system.
